WHY KENYA?

- The Construction Industry in Kenya and framework advancement is a focal mainstay of Kenya's vision 2030 and in 2015 the US$3bn development segment contributed 4.8% to the Kenyan economy.
- In Nairobi, the capital and biggest city of Kenya, there is one of the biggest exile networks in the mainland because of the critical number of multinationals who have picked Nairobi as either their African centre or East and Central African centre point. The resurrection of property advancement in Nairobi has pulled in worldwide consideration.
- Rising number of construction activities, growing demand for Hardware Items in Houses, offices, malls, restaurants and resorts, technological advancements, increasing demand for Hardware from emerging countries are some of the factors favouring the market.
- East Africa's largest economy has a housing shortfall of 2 million homes and only about 26,000 mortgages. The Kenyan president's big 4 agenda includes a plan to build 1,000,00 housing units by 2027

MISSION AND VISION

- Our vision is to encourage entrepreneurship through self-employment, fostering the overall sustainable growth of Micro & Small Industries, which in turn contributes to the sustainable growth of the country. We aim to operate the industry as a family, including owners, workers, customers, and suppliers as integral members. By enhancing gainful employment opportunities, we strive to ensure that each individual achieves a decent standard of living. Our mission is to maintain sustained growth in productivity with a focus on quality and competitiveness, promote indigenous technology within the Micro & Small industry, and encourage research and development activities. We support the establishment of Micro & Small industries to utilize available natural resources effectively while operating in an eco-friendly manner. Through the decentralization of manufacturing activities, such as ancillarization and cluster formation, we aim to counter economic imbalances. Our goal is to attain international competitiveness and enhance the capacity building of human resources through skill development.
